DETAILED ACTION

This Office action is responsive to communication received 02/27/2004 – application papers filed.

Claims 1-5 are pending.

Following is an action on the MERITS:

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 2 and 3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. §102(b) as being anticipated by Furr ('432). As to claim 1, reference is made to Figures 6A and 7 and the description in col. 5, lines 1-36, wherein Furr discloses a playing figure having first and second portions, namely foot portion (53) and head portion (51). As to claims 2 and 3, a counterweight (58) may be selectively added to the head portion to change the location of the center of gravity, whereby the playing figure takes on a second posture that differs from a first posture assumed by the figure when the weight is not included within the head portion. In other words, the first posture leaves the player figurine in a substantially vertical orientation, while the second posture enables the player figurine to take on a substantially horizontal orientation.

Claims 4 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. §103(a) as being unpatentable over Furr ('432) in view of Leonhart and Ho. Furr shows every feature claimed with the exception of a tight-fitting jacket removably attached over the second portion of the figure. Leonhart indicates that a covering such as a helmet (4) may be fitted over a player figurine. Here, the helmet may serve as the claimed "jacket", as broadly as claimed. Note, Leonhart indicates that the prior art is replete with helmets constructed to tightly engage the head portion of a player figurine such that friction keeps the helmet from falling off during play (col. 1, lines 5-38). In addition, note that the helmet in Leonhart provides some measurable amount of weight to the head portion of the figurine. Moreover, the additional reference to Ho indicates that the upper portion of a player figurine may be provided with added weight that is included as part of the helmet or head portion of the figurine so that the location of the center of gravity may be changed. In view of the patent to Leonhart and the above reasoning, it would have been obvious to modify the device in the cited art reference to Furr by shaping the weight as a part of the upper portion of the body or as an accouterment that is added to the figurine, the motivation being to simply change the shape of the weight. The shape of the weight is not deemed critical. It would appear that having the weight shaped to resemble any common accessory would have simply involved an obvious change in design.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Rudell and Makhoul show tabletop games, of interest. McCloud, Price and Furr ('073) show foosball games, of interest. Note the horizontal orientation of the paddles in May. Goldblatt and Meyer show toy elements that are oriented towards a vertical position under the effect of gravity.
